Welcome to the festival

By STEVE BIDDLE

BOALSBURG — It doesn’t seem like it’s been 27 years since George and Nancy Marion initiated the first People’s Choice Festival, but it has been. It was 1993, and there were skeptics, particularly because George decided to hold his fledgling festival at the very same time the older, bigger festival was taking place in downtown State College. That festival had been held annually since 1967. But actually, that was probably one of the things that made People’s Choice such a success. Now, people come from all over to attend the festivals. Plural.

The People’s Choice Festival started right where it is now: on the grounds of the Pennsylvania Military Museum in Boalsburg. It was different from the senior festival, with plenty of wide open spaces and a relaxed family atmosphere. At that first festival back in 1993, there were maybe 50 vendors, a few food trucks and a bit of live entertainment. But people loved it.

Now, the festival boasts nearly 200 artisans, specialty food vendors and wineries. There are many popular food concessions, and continuous live entertainment on two stages. There’s a children’s craft area and Young Artisan Sales Tent as well. And once again this year, we expect to host more than 110,000 visitors during the four-day People’s Choice Festival.

Several of the committee members have been with the festival, in one way or another, for all 27 years. As you would expect, an enormous amount of work goes into planning and presenting this festival, but it’s a labor of love for the committee members. And we, the festival committee, extend a warm welcome to all of our visitors — first time guests, as well as those who have been attending since that very first festival 27 years ago. We hope you have a wonderful time!

How it all comes together

By STEVE BIDDLE

It probably won’t come as a surprise that there’s an awful lot of work and preparation that goes into The People’s Choice Festival. And it takes place pretty much all year.

Co-director Cindy Rockey, who has been with the festival since the beginning, explains, “Our festival committee is comprised of eight different directors, each as important and critical to the organization and presentation of our festival as the other. We have directors’ meetings ten months out of the year.

My duties as a co-director are to handle all information, Excel charts for artists, specialty food vendors, wineries, community service and center court activities. I also handle all the treasury and bookkeeping duties.”

Rockey also serves as the liaison between the committee and The Centre County Gazette, which prints this guide, and between the committee and GGA Global, which produces the website.

Starting in January, Rockey enters information for all artist applications into Excel charts and prepares the lists for Jury Day. She also prepares, prints and mails all acceptance materials.

Then, on a Saturday around mid-January, it’s Jury Day. That’s when all the committee members gather for an all-day session, during which all the hundreds of applications from those who would like to participate in the festival are evaluated, discussed and voted on. That’s the day when decisions are made about who will be invited to participate as an artisan.

There’s a lot more to putting on The People’s Choice Festival in Boalsburg than many people think, including establishing a wide array of food vendors.

particular her expertise with office protocol and computer programs.

“She is my back-up and “double check,” said Rockey. Rockey, Plummer, Georgia Madison and Donna Plunkert manage check-in day.

John Madison has also been with the festival since the beginning, and he’s the other co-director. Every year, he coordinates with all the facility providers for everything involved in the set-up. That means electricity for the entertainment stages and food vendors.

Arrangements must be made for tents, trash removal, recycling, toilets, EMS, golf carts, landscaping, traffic control, local police and emergency management office and for real time weather updates during the festival. There’s also coordination with PennDOT, Harris Township and State College police.

Madison said, “I also work with Don (Rockey) taking care of stages during off times, and making sure we have everything we need for set-up day, which is a vast array of tools, rope, tent stakes, engineering tape, 60 D spikes, flags … the list goes on and on, believe me.”

As the festival’s facilities director, Don Rockey works closely with Madison to make sure that set-up and tear-down go smoothly. There are many things to do.

Don also makes sure all shuttle carts are running and have full gas tanks. He manages the volunteers who pick up trash and recycling. You’ll find him on the grounds from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m., available to artists and visitors for assistance.

All this would not be possible without the volunteers — and Madison makes arrangements for hiring workers and volunteers for set-up and clean-up days.

“I try to have six to 10 people for set-up day; we start at 7 a.m. and everything is usually wrapped up by three in the afternoon,” he said. Set-up day is the day prior to the festival’s Thursday opening.

Doing the Festival lay-out is an enormous task. Every year, Madison, Don and the volunteers have to find all the steel pins in the ground, which mark the outlines of the Outer Artisan Circle and the Food Court. That’s 195 Artisan pins. Then there are the locations for the “big tents” and the inner circle.

“We do this with a metal detector, and every year these steel pins sink down into the ground. I assume the frost has something to do with it — sometimes..."
AND THERE’S SO MUCH MORE
While Madison is making the arrangements with the facility providers, Cindy is busy putting together acceptance letters to food concessionaires, specialty food vendors and wineries. In April and May, she organizes community services groups and Center Court activities. When July rolls around, there are long, hot 12-hour days set up through the duration of the festival.

One of the things that makes The People’s Choice Festival popular is non-stop entertainment on two stages. That’s entertainment director Chris Kepler’s department.

Beginning in January, Kepler accepts applications from entertainers who would like to perform at the festival. He notes that he has about 40, one-hour performance spots to fill each year.

Then, in February, “I start putting the schedule together with the emphasis of getting a diverse selection of performances to help please the different tastes of festival attendees,” he said. “I try to focus on keeping things somewhat different year to year by having performances that have never been there before, some that have been there before but not the previous year, and the ones who do really well bringing a considerable size fan base to the festival. As with all performances I try to have performances that will bring a crowd that will help to support the festival, artisans, and food vendors.”

By April, contracts have been sent out and returned, and the entertainment schedule announced on the festival’s Facebook page and website. Not only does Kepler take care of scheduling, as the owner of Chris Kepler Audio Services, he provides the sound systems for both stages.

Another thing people love about the festival is the vast array of food from the many concessionaires. Rick Snyder, owner of Snyder’s Concessions, keeps his eyes open for new and different food vendors.

“There’s non-stop entertainment on two stages. I like a variety of foods. That keeps it interesting for the public,” said Snyder. “We have a long list of vendors that would like to get in. People’s Choice is a fun time with lots of good food and lots of fine arts for everybody.”

Diana Stapleford, marketing and sponsorship director, is the general manager of Magnum Broadcasting in State College. She has been involved with the festival almost since its inception. She is responsible for working with the many valued businesses that sponsor the festival. Stapleford also plans, coordinates and executes the marketing for the festival.

“I’m always looking for new and innovative ways to get the message out about the festival,” said Stapleford. “Once we get them there, generally they come back every year. We have been able to market the festival to a very wide area, attracting festival attendees statewide through radio, television, print, social media platforms and digital media.”

Stapleford also helps to coordinate many events that happen in the center of the festival.

And in that respect, Stapleford and I work closely together. I write all the radio commercials you hear for The People’s Choice Festival and I produce them in my little studio in Southern Pines, N.C. My responsibilities not only include radio commercials, but I also write and edit news releases and letters to be sent by the committee.

I’ve been living away from the Centre Region for several years, but my heart is always there.

It really is a tremendous amount of work to prepare and present The People’s Choice Festival. And we’ve really just scratched the surface here. To learn more about how you can participate as a volunteer, contact Madison at john@madisonhatr.com or Cindy Rockey at cjrockey17@gmail.com.

Tim Bradford, of Dragon’s Breath Forge in Pleasant Gap, works on a project during the 2018 People’s Choice Festival in Boalsburg. Bradford and other vendors at the festival brought along the equipment they use to make their art, offering visitors a glimpse into their craftsmanship. The same opportunities will be available in 2019.
BOALSBURG — Ever since The People’s Choice Festival began 27 years ago, one of the most familiar and memorable experiences was watching Bob Haffly make brooms — by hand. A lot of folks bought Haffly’s brooms, but not many people had given much thought to how brooms were made, particularly back in the old days.

But there was Haffly, explaining as he went along, taking batches of broomcorn, winding them tight on the handle, chopping here and there ... and when he was finished, it was more than a broom. It was a work of art.

Not long ago, Haffly retired from broom-making. But a broom-maker is back this year in Jeffrey Heilman — a former chiropractor, personally trained by the master, Bob Haffly — keeping the tradition alive. And here’s his story:

THE STORY OF DR. BROOM
By JEFFREY HEILMAN

Once there was a chiropractor who, after 30 years, decided to do something completely different.

But before that he met this old time banjo player, Bob Haffly, who happened to make brooms. He made all kinds of brooms, entirely by hand. At the time this didn’t even register with the good doctor. They just played old-time music together with a mutual old-time friend for several years.

And then came a time when the chiropractor of the first part was happy to help Haffly with a little remodeling project over at his place in Amberson.

Also at this same time, the doctor was contemplating the meaning of “Truth is Beauty and Beauty Truth ... and that’s all you can know or need to know,” by John Keats by way of Dan Simmons’ Hyperion.

Upon approaching the little broom shop in Amberson nestled in the forest about a quarter mile off the asphalt road, he noticed the magical beauty of newly wound house brooms standing in a row all around the outside walls. He’d soon learn they dry better that way.

Inside the shop, he found the beauty of the broomcorn stacked in alternating patterns, giving an artistic herringbone effect. He’d soon learn the stack is more stable that way.

There was this occurrence of beauty as a reliable marker for the true. When things worked the best, they were beautiful.

“Well, I have an extra machine right here. Why don’t you give it a try?” he responded.

The doctor’s “try” took three or four weeks. There are parts of the process that resemble those impossible card tricks; not really a trick, but a long practiced skill that makes it look easy. At times there was more broomcorn on the floor than on the broom stick.

“I’m buying that by the pound,” said the master.

You can learn to make a broom in a few weeks. Making a living making brooms takes some years. Lifelong learning as far as I can tell.

That was in 2013. In 2014, I decided to retire my chiropractic license and begin making brooms entirely by hand. And to this day, if I lose touch with the beauty of making a broom, either by trying to go too fast or through sheer mindlessness, the process departs from the true method, error mixing in. Recognizing the departure is at the same time the remedy.

What do you get when you blend a doctor of chiropractic and a broom maker? Dr. Broom.

And Dr. Broom stands on one leg working a kick winder many hours a day; loads and unloads heavy equipment for each show; and is prone to slouching over the broom press, with a bit of error mixed in. Applying the recognition principle to my own frame, errors are corrected there as well.

So I teach and coach folks to master mechanical self-care through simple recognition and release. My nickname, Dr. Broom, is on each broom label along with my telephone number and “Consultations Always Free.”

That’s my story ... so far.
Providing care for another person can put stress on the caregiver, affecting their health, well-being, and relationships.

The Family Caregiver Support Program (FCSP) reinforces the care that family members and significant others give to an adult aged 60+. For caregivers who are paying for help or need to hire help, the programs could provide financial reimbursement so they may have a break from care-giving.

Financial reimbursement could also be available for extra expenses associated with caring for an older family member.

The program does not reimburse family members for time spent caring for their older relative.

Family activities aplenty at festival

This year, Ashburn’s Animals will not only bring a petting zoo to The People’s Choice Festival, but there will be some reptiles for education and awareness, too.
Saturday. Miss Choo Choo the Clown will entertain the kids and make balloon animals from 10 a.m.-6 p.m.

Saturday is also Character Day, featuring many of the kids’ favorites. WPSU-TV will be there too, featuring Buddy the Dinosaur from “Dinosaur Train” from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. At 1 p.m. and again at 4:30 p.m., the Dialed Action Sports Team BMX Stunters will demonstrate their skill and talent.

For both kids and parents, Nittany Greyhounds and Nittany Beagle Rescue will have a presence at the festival. Nittany Greyhounds will be in Community Tent B from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday and Nittany Beagles on Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

Nittany Greyhounds has been re-homing retired racing greyhounds for more than 24 years. They invite you to visit and learn more about these marvelous dogs. And you can visit and learn about beagles with Nittany Beagles — a nonprofit organization rescuing beagles and finding forever homes for them.

Once again this year, Ashburn’s Animals on a Mission will host a petting zoo, and they have something new as well: Ashburn’s Reptile Show. Ashburn’s mission is to help educate the public about reptiles and rescue.

Janel Ashburn says, “While the animals we bring may change, they may bring a young alligator, a Burmese python, a tegu, Savannah monitor, hognose snake, a boa constrictor, tortoise, milk snake, rat snakes, iguana and maybe a few invertebrates.” The reptile show takes place on Sunday from 3 to 4:30 p.m.

Also on Sunday at noon, don’t miss the Giant Foods/QWiK ROCK “King of the Wing” event.

There’s more fun for the kids throughout the festival, such as face painting by State College Thespians, the ever-popular JUMP THIS! Bouncy House, hands-on science activities with Dominion Science Center and more, all located in the Center Court Youth Area. They can even learn how to tie-dye their own T-shirts with Try Dy.

Younger artists will display and sell their creations in the Youth Artisan Tent Thursday through Saturday. It’s a great way for these budding young artisans to display their talent, many of them for the first time.

On Sunday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Youth Artisan Tent, it’s story time and a book giveaway, with free books to the first 100 kids.

With the wide-open spaces of the Pennsylvania Military Museum Grounds, plenty of activities for the kids, talented artisans, specialty food vendors, wineries and loads of food trucks, The People’s Choice Festival really is the ideal family event.

The Youth Area/Center Court is sponsored by SolarShield, Bath Fitter, Integrity Construction and Renewal By Andersen.

There are some people who have names to match what they do. Kimberley Jade is one of those people. “Kimberley” comes from the Kimberley Diamond Mines in South Africa, and “Jade,” from the beautiful stone.

Jade said, “I grew up in a family of mineral lovers, being raised in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania. My father is a past president of the Mineralogical Society of Pennsylvania and a graduate of Franklin and Marshall College with a degree in Geology.”

As a child, “many weekends were spent in mine dumps, quarries, caves and at mineral club meetings and events. I’ve been a ‘pebble pusher’ ever since I was old enough to walk.”

And when she was a teenager, she began creating jewelry, and that has now evolved into a full-time profession and a family business.

Jade said, “I strive to design pieces that are fashion-forward, while still maintaining that classic, yet contemporary feel, and almost always multi-functional in appeal.”

She works within four themes:

- The “Wired Out of Hand” collection, which she describes as a “fun, everyday chic look combining gemstone, metals and sometimes leather”
- The “Refining Fire” collection is a rustic yet elegant design with a Judeo-Christian theme
- Her “Celebrate Life” collection Jade says was “inspired by a dream,” and
- The “Let’s Celebrate” collection, is a special occasion or wedding line with many one-of-a-kind and limited edition pieces.

She has recently opened a shop in Strasburg called Wire to Fire Artisans, at 11 East Main Street. And, of course, she’ll be displaying and selling her creations at this year’s People’s Choice Festival.

If you’re interested in working in an innovative, interesting environment, Chemcut is looking for you.

If you are familiar with table saws, reading blueprints and can use a ruler, you’re the kind of person we are looking for. Carpentry type tools are used to fabricate our equipment. If you’re a hands-on person that likes to have something at the end of the day that you have built, this is the job for you. There are a variety of positions including CNC machine operation, injection molding as well as parts fabrication and assembly. Most of these jobs enable you to move around, and not just be stuck in a chair all day.

Come in and complete an application and submit it with your resume, or email Arlene at: HR@chemcut.net.
We offer competitive wages, 401K, vacation time, sick time and paid holidays. Shift is Monday to Friday 7:00 am to 3:30 pm. The plant is climate controlled and easily accessible from most areas.

ABOUT CHEMCUT: Chemcut is the world’s leading developer and supplier of wet processing equipment for photo chemical milling of thin metal parts, chemical engraving of signs and nameplates, etching printed circuit boards and metal finishing. We design and manufacture all of our equipment and machines in our 110,000 square-foot State College facility.
